

Jeanne Brady
Professor of Fibers
Biography

Jeanne has been a professional artist for over thirty-four years. She received a Bachelor of Fine Art degree in Printmaking & Drawing, and a Masters of Fine Art degree in Surface & Textile design.

Jeanne is the Professor of Fibers at Tennessee Tech University's Appalachian Center for Craft in Tennessee, teaching surface design and weaving classes in the BFA program. She also teaches workshops and volunteers her time working with Tennessee Craft, Tennessee's statewide craft organization.

Jeanne exhibits and sells her fiber work of wall hangings and wearables in local, national, and international venues. Her work is represented in numerous private collections and has been published in various books and craft magazine.

Jeanne's style encompasses her favorite techniques of painting, printing, and drawing, which creates a unique style and originality of design.